To announce upcoming training and simulation dates for Senior High School social studies teachers interested in participating in the Program in National Securities Studies Fall Student Simulation.

- The Department of Social Sciences, in cooperation with Florida International University's (FIU) Jack D. Gordon Institute of Public Policy, is offering a three-hour training session on September 26, 2013 from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. regarding this fall's student simulation concerning issues of national security.
 - To learn more about the FIU's Jack D. Gordon Institute of Public Policy, please click on the following link: <http://ippcs.fiu.edu/> .
 - Participants will receive instruction regarding how to prepare students to participate in a student simulation exploring an issue of national security, free instructional materials, and 13 Master Plan Points for successful completion of all workshop requirements. Information regarding the training and the simulation are as follows:
 - Simulation Training Date and Location: Thursday, September 26, 2013 from 1:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m. Location: FIU's main south campus (room TBA). Since September 26, 2013 is a secondary early release day, no substitute coverage is needed. To register for this training, please click on the following link:
