FIU's Jack D. Gordon Institute for Public Policy, in collaboration with the Division of Social Sciences and Life Skills, is offering a Program in National Security Studies for senior high school social studies teachers and students.

- The purpose of this program is to develop senior high school students' interest in National Security and its importance and impact in global, national, and local affairs.
 - The program consists of two major events: One teacher workshop and one senior high school student simulation. The teacher workshop will be utilized to prepare teachers for the student simulation. The dates for the workshop and simulation are as follows:
 - The teacher workshop will be held on October 23, 2009 from 9:00am-3:30pm at FIU/University Campus. Substitute coverage will be provided and information will be forwarded to participating teachers regarding the funding structure to cover the substitute at a later date.
 - The student simulation will be on December 1, 2009 at FIU/University Campus Graham Center Ballroom. Substitute coverage will be provided for teachers attending the student simulation, as well.
 - Participating teachers will receive 18 MPP upon completion of all program requirements.
 - Teachers must complete and submit the attached application form no later than October 1, 2009.
 - Teachers selected to participate in the program will be notified by email no later than October 7, 2009.
 - Once teachers have been notified of their participation in the program, they are required to register on the Professional Development Menu and Registration System in order to obtain full Master Plan Points.
 - Only teachers notified of their approved participation will be admitted to the workshop.
